CARTOONS HELP TO RECRUIT

London, July 8.—Many London shop windows are displaying a new cartoon-poster drawn for the recruiting office of one of the Home Defense Regiments. It shows a typical British father before the war, resigned to middle age, bent and loose-limbed; and the same father today, upright, full-chested, and martial in deportment. The cartoon illustrates one of the great topics of the day among the thousands of business men who have taken up military training in the home defense regiments. They are all men over forty who undergo daily a course of training extending over an hour or two, and who are in many cases marvelling at the transformation thereby wrought in their figures. Men who fought nature with mass-ages, baths, diets and drugs in vain, now find that war drill has conquered the advancing waist line.

MILL PRICES RISE

Mill prices have raised materially during the European war, both on flour and sugar. Flour is now selling at between $3.50 and $3.75 per barrel. Sugar is now selling at seven cents per pound or 15 pounds for $1, with every indication that as the summer season advances it may rise even further in price. Local dealers interviewed on the subject say that it is due to manufacturers' manipulation.

GIVE PRIZES FOR COLONIAL HISTORY

Berlin, July 9.—For the rounding out of a sort of auxiliary history of the war regarding the German colonies, residents of the empire's territorial possessions have been asked to submit short sketches of their experience since last August. The papers must be between 800 and 1,000 words in length. To induce a large number of such sketches the organization planning the history has offered several prizes—a first of 100 marks, a second of 100 marks, a third of 75 marks and two fourths of 50 marks—for the best that are submitted. The articles are to touch on the life of the colonists, the officials, the troops and of the native born. Those of artistic bent are asked to send accompanying sketches, or to turn in pictorial rather than written descriptions of colonial life.
